Climate Investing

When Investors meet Founders

There are two numbers that truly matter about climate change: the first is 51 billion, the other is zero. 51 billion is how many greenhouse gases the world adds to the atmosphere every year, zero is what we need to aim for.

In short, humans need to stop adding greenhouse gases in the atmosphere - while this is collectively the biggest challenge of our century and will require strong actions from both the public and the private sector, it is also a multi trillion-dollar opportunity for investors and entrepreneurs.

This SECA event will showcase leading Swiss Founders and Investors in Climate, and discuss opportunities, challenges and look into the future.
