Alternatives in Europe Outlook 2025

The alternatives market in Europe is diversifying, with private equity and infrastructure proving their value compared to venture capital and real estate. But could the anticipated reduction in interest rates be a driver of both the acceleration of private equity and deceleration of private debt? Join us on Tuesday 12 November, where our panel of industry experts will discuss the latest alternative data and analysis to better understand the key factors that are having a significant impact on alternative assets in the region.

Key questions for the event:

- What are the challenges and successes you are currently seeing for Private Capital in Europe?
- Changes and regulations on the horizon that will benefit private capital in the region.
- What is the expectation for growth in the private capital market over the next 3-5 years?
- Which asset classes do you see delivering the best opportunities?
- Local versus Global?

Program:
